anarchy must be crushed out. They are not many, but they are infinitely malignant, and the hand of our power hould close ever them at once. They formed plots to destroy property, they have entered into conpiracies against the neutrality of the Government, they have sought to pry into every confidential transaction of the Government in order to serve inerests allen to our own. It is possible to deal with these things very effectually. I need not suggest the terms in which they may be dealt

"I wish that it could be said that only a few men, misled by mistaken sentiments of allegiance to the Governments under which they were born. had been guilty of disturbing the self-possession and misrepresenting the temper and principles of the country during these days of terrible war, when it would seem that every man who was truly an American would instinctively make it his duty and his pride to keep the scales of judgment even and prove himself a partisan of no nation but his own. But it can-

They also preach and practice disloyalty. No laws, I suppose, reach corruptions of the mind and heart; but I should not speak of others without also speaking of these and expressing the even deeper humiliation and scorn which every selfsessed and thoughtfully patriotic American must feel when he thinks of them and of the discredit they are daily bringing upon us."

daily bringing upon us."

A doctrine of Pan-Americanismof full partnership between the nations of the Western Hemisphere in world affairs—was proclaimed by President Wilson in this his third annual address to Congress, the theme of which was preparedness by the United States to defend not only its own independence, but the rights of those with whom it has made common cause. The message was read by the President to the Senate and House assembled in joint session in the Chamber of the House.
Every recommendation embodied in the document had to do with comprehensive plans for strengthening the national defenses. The programme included the army and navy plans already made public by Secretaries (Garrison and Daniels; legislation for sovernment owned merchant ships; a rural credit law; the Philippine and Porto Ricco bills which failed of final passage at the last session; conservation legislation; a law civing Federal sage at the last session; conservaion legislation; a law giving Federal id to industrie! and vocational education, and the creation of a commision to inquire into the transporta-

Internal taxation was proposed as the means of providing the money necessary to add to the navel and military establishments. Sources of taxation suggested were incomes, gasciline, naphtna, automobiles and internal expices on engines, fabricated iron and steel and a stamp tax on bank checks. Extension of the war revenue bill and continuance of the present tariff on sugar were recommended, and the sais of bonds opposed.

This message was the longest Mr. Wilson has ever delivered to Congress. He began with a statement that since he last addressed Congress:

"The European war has extended its threatening and sinister scope until it has swept into its flame some portion of every quarter of the globe, not excepting our own hemisphere; has altered the whole face of international affairs, and now presents a prospect affairs, and now presents a prospect of reorganization and reconstruction such as statesmen and peoples have never been called upon to attempt be-

"But," he added, "it was always difficult to maintain such a role without offense to the pride of the peoples whose freedom of action we sought to protect, and every thoughtful man of affairs must welcome the altered circumstances of the new day in whose light we now stand, when there is no claim of guardianship or thought of wards, but, instead, a full and honorable association of partners between ourselves and our neighbors, in the ourselves and our neighbors, in the nterests of all America, North and interests of all America, North and Sauth.

"Our concern for the independence and the prosperity of the States of Central and South America is not altered. We retain unabated the spirit that has inspired us throughout the whole life of our government and which was so frankly put into words by President Monres. We still mean always to make a common cause of national independence and of political liberty in America. But that purpose is now better understood so far as it concerns ourselves. It is known not to be a selfish purpose. It is known to have in it no thought of taking advantage of any government in this hemisphere or playing its political fortunes for our own benefit. All the governments of America stand, so far as we are concerned, upon a footing of genuins equality and unquestioned independence.

"We have been put to the test in the case of Mexico, and we have stood the test," declared the President. He added that it remained to be seen

"The moral is," continued the "The moral is," continued the President, "that the States of America are not hostile rivals but cooperating friends, and that their growing sense of community interest, allke in matters political and in matters economic is likely to give them a new significance as factors in international affairs and in the political history of the world. It presents them as in a very deep and true sense a unit in world affairs, spiritual partners, standing together because thinking together, quick with common sympathies and common ideals. Separated, they are subject to all the cross currents of the confused politics of a world of hostile rivalries; united in spiirt and purpose, they cannot be disappointed of their peaceful destiny. "
